1. Approximately each ten days a special train of the Soviet command at Constanta travels to Giurgiu by way of Bucharest. Special security measures are taken to protect the passengers. Coaches are camouflaged and the window curtains are closed at all times.
2. The train does not enter the Bucharest stations, stopping at Bucharest-Noi to receive and discharge Soviet officers. The Giurgiu stop is made at a small wooden station newly constructed by the Rumanians ten kilometers north of the town. Passengers are discharged here only at night and continue their journey in automobiles and trucks under heavy guard.
3. The train does not move according to an established schedule and the Rumanian State Railroads are required to take special measures in order to prevent disruption of normal traffic.
